

ZOOLOGICAL

EARTH OR ANGLE-WORMS.

The common earth or angle-worm inhabits all gardens and rich soils generally, much to the detriment of the appearance of the former where neat walks and alleys are always desirable. They usually come to the surface in rains and after heavy dews, (hence taking the name of dew worms,) bringing with them a portion of the soil, and leaving their casts and trails wherever they move. These facts are generally noticed, but few have studied their uses or sought to know the part they perform in the economy of nature. Instead of being, as is generally supposed detrimental to the farmer, they are laborers with him in the improvement of the soil. A scientific writer on Zoology says:

"The burrowing of earth-worms is a process exceedingly useful to the gardener and agriculturist; and these animals are far more useful to man in this way, than they are injurious by destroying vegetables. They give a kind of under tillage to the land, performing the same below the ground that the spade does above for the garden and the for arable, land loosening the earth so as to render it permeable to air and water. It has lately been shown that they will even add to the depth of soil; covering barren tracts with a layer of productive mould. Thus in fields that have been overgrown with lime burnt marl, or cinders, these substances are in time covered with finely-divided soil, well adapted to the support of vegetation

"That this result—which is not commonly attributed by farmers to the 'working down' of the material in question—is really due to the action of the earth-worm, it appears from the fact that in the soil thus formed, large numbers of 'worm casts' may be distinguished. These are produced by the digestive process of the worms, which take into their intestinal canal, a large quantity of the soil through which they burrow, extract from it a great part of the decaying vegetable matter it may contain, and eject the rest in a finely divided state. In this manner a field manured with marl has become covered; in the course of eighty years, with a bed of earth averaging thirteen inches in thickness."

Another author speaks of the angle-worm (Lumbricus terrestris) as the natural manure of the soil, and the ready indicator of its improved state. It consumes on the surface of the ground, where they would soon be injurious, the softer parts of decayed vegetable matters, and conveys into the soil the more woody fibres, where they moulder and become reduced to a simple nutriment, fitting for living vegetation. The parts consumed by them are soon returned to the surface, whence dissolved by frosts and scattered by rains, they circulate again in the plants of the soil—a ceaseless rotation. "death still producing life."

These worms are tender creatures and water remaining a few days over their haunts drowns them; they easily become frozen, unless they enter deeper into the ground to escape the cold. No sooner is the frost out of the ground, than they come to the surface and go to work again. We have observed that a certain degree of moisture seems necessary to their activity; they go down to the depth of eighteen inches or two feet in extreme dry weather. We have found them knotted in a compact ball in a dry hard sub-soil, so hard as to require a pick to penetrate it. Various other characteristics in their natural history might be mentioned, but they do not refer particularly to their agricultural uses, we leave them to the researches of the curious reader.—[Country Gentleman

Winter Operations in the Esculent Garden.

The crops, except, perhaps, the Parsnip, Horse Radish, Asparagus and a few others which are hardy or perennial; have been removed. What can be done in the garden or rather what should be done to give it a more orderly appearance, and at the same time improve the condition of the soil, all refuse should be gathered and removed to the manure pile, and the vacant squares thrown up into ridges. Where the plow can be introduced the work may be more expeditiously performed; the ridges, however, are best thrown up by the spade.

Very stiff clay is improved by covering in a quantity of long manure, this by decomposition renders the soil friable, and when the ridges are leveled down in the spring, the improvement is obvious. At this season, strict attention should be given to the preparation & accumulation of manure, without which we can never raise good esculents, and not attended to in season, we shall always be in want of it. Those who have means and opportunities to attend to hot-bed frames, generally employ a gardener, who will of course attend, in due season to his duties.

We would recommend all who have had a portion of their farm set apart for a vegetable garden, and who have not cultivated it according to a regular rotation, to rearrange it, lay it out in four or six regular compartments, with convenient walks and borders and the result will be much more satisfactory.

In the House of Correction is an old prisoner, aged 86 years. His manners are easy and his mind condescending, but he has a peculiar forte in bestowing benedictions.—In return for a favor of one of the overseers, he gave utterance to the following—"May the peary gates of Heaven ever be open to ye and if they shut it is a d—d shame"

DR. MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS

Above we present you with a likeness of DR. MORSE—the inventor of MORSE'S INDIAN ROOT PILLS. This philanthropist has spent the greater part of his life in traveling, having visited Europe, Asia, and Africa, as well as North America—has spent three years among the Indians of our Western country—it was in this way that the Indian Root Pills were first discovered. Dr. Morse was the first man to establish the fact that all diseases arise from IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD—that our strength, health and vigor depend upon this vital fluid.

When the various passages become clogged, and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted, and diseased; thus causing all pains, sickness and distress of every name; our strength is exhausted, our health is impaired, and if nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humors, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will forever be blown out. How important then that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open. And how pleasant to us that we have in our power to purify the blood, and to drive out the impurities which grow around the mountains, cliffs, Nature's Garden, for the health and recovery of diseased man. One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a Sadorine, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in having the coarser parts of the corruption within. The second is a plant which is an Expectant, that opens and unclogs the passage to the lungs, and thus, in a soothing manner, performs its duty in throwing off phlegm, and other humors from the lungs by copious spitting. The third is a Diuretic, which gives double ease and strength to the kidneys; thus encouraged, they draw large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is then thrown out abundantly by the urinary or water passage, and which could not have been discharged in any other way. The fourth is a Cathartic, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood, and the stomach and intestines, and draw large amounts of impurity which cannot pass by the other outlets, are thus taken up and conveyed off in great quantities by the bowels.

From the above, it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only enter the stomach, but become united with the blood, and in this way to every part, and completely root out and cleanse the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood, becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain is driven from the system, for they cannot remain when the body becomes so pure and clear.

The reason why people are so distressed when sick, and why so many die, is because they do not get a medicine which will pass to the afflicted parts, and which will open the natural passage for the disease to be cast out; hence, a large quantity of food and other matter is lodged in the stomach and intestines, and literally overflowing with the corrupted mass; thus undergoing a disagreeable fermentation, constantly mixing with the blood, which throws the corrupted matter through every vein and artery, until life is taken from the body by disease. Dr. Morse's PILLS have added to themselves victory upon victory, by restoring millions of sick and blooming health and happiness. Yes, thousands who have been racked or tormented with sickness, pain and anguish, and whose feeble frames have been scorched by the burning elements of raging fever, and who have been brought, as it were, within a step of the silent grave, now stand ready to testify that they would be literally buried with the dead, had it not been for this great and wonderful medicine, Morse's Indian Root Pills. After one or two doses had been taken, they were astonished, and absolutely surprised, in witnessing their charming effects. Not only do they give immediate ease and strength to the system, but they drive out the anguish, but they at once go to work at the foundation of the disease, which is the blood.—Therefore, it will be shown, especially by those who use these Pills, that they will cleanse and purify, that disease—that deadly enemy—will take its flight, and the flush of youth and beauty will again return, and the prospect of a long and happy life will cherish and brighten your days.

Sold by Thomas Devine, Ebensburg, and by Medicine Dealers generally throughout the County; B. Lake Judson, successor to A. J. White & Co., No. 50 Leonard st., N. Y.; Proprietors; William Muldo & Co., (Proprietors of Dr. A. Trask's Favorite Ointment,) Earlville, Madison county, N. Y., General Agents. August 3, 1856.—1y
